INTRODUCTION

We are pleased to announce a preparatory course for first-year radiology residents. The course will be held on 15th July, 2018 at the Kokilaben Hospital, Mumbai.

We invite the first-year MD, DNB and DMRD residents to participate.

As a medical student, exposure to radiology is limited and many do not fully understand the role of the radiologist as well as the challenges that lie ahead. Appropriate guidance in the initial stages and preparing students for radiology residency is crucial. What is required is the effective use of the resources, being a team player, being a part of the multidisciplinary patient management team and academic participation.

The highlight of this course is lectures and interactive sessions with a panel of radiologists and visionaries. There will also be a three-hour session on contrast-related emergencies, management and basic life support training. This course is a must for any aspiring radiologist.

Participants will be urged to share their ideas about their expectation from their residency. A 15-minute session has been allocated for this.

Residency is not just about passing an exam, but to be of value in patient care.
